

Grayson

January 4, 2010

Happy New Year! I bet your New Year's Eve party was better than mine. Just kidding. A little humor never hurts though.

Well, I am currently at a transfer facility in Huntsville, Texas. Oh the places you never thought you would go. Hey, didn't Dr. Seuss write a book similar to that? Oh, that's right, his was called, Oh the Places You'll Go.

Actually his book didn't mean "places" as in places like prison. But then again, it would probably have sold a lot less copies if it had meant, places, as in, prisons; Being a Children's book and all. ☺ Things are actually going well for me here. I am adjusting about as well as one can to a situation like this. And, truth be told, most of these places are pretty much all the same.

Also, I am starting to get used to being locked up. That doesn't mean I don't want to go home, because I definitely do. I am just getting used to being incarcerated. Basically, I know that I am not bonding out anytime soon.

So how are you doing? How are doing? Tell them I said, "Hello". I hope y'all had a great holiday.

Well I am going to wrap this up. Take care and keep in touch. I miss you, man.

Love,

Dan